

Georgina Dimova, Macedonia

She is teaching computer science since last 17 years. She is twinning ambassador, scientix ambassador, TechSDGs ambassador, Edmodo ambassador and British Council trainer, MIE Expert. She participated in Academy for Central European Schools as coordinator for 4 years. Her project “Small actions make big changes” was chosen as best project for the students with special needs. Her students interacted with experts, authors, engineers of other countries like Sweden, France, Kenya, and Canada. She on sustainable development project with Kenya and with her students made solar lamp and will sent to Kenya to cope with their electricity problems.

For last five years she is working on Scientix network in Brussels and is ambassador for it. She represented her country in Belgrade with his project “Running a parking lot by a microbit”. She has trained more than 500 teachers and 200 people in basic software skills and coding as a trainer.

She is co-founder of Center for Innovations and digital Education DIG-ED organization to improve digital competencies for students and teachers. She has presented various articles and lessons related to IT education in various conferences.